Specific Benefits
• Advice from experts with knowledge of the furniture flammability regulations and test methods. We will help you work out which tests you need to pass
• We are accredited by UKAS and our reports carry the UKAS logo
• Our reports give details about the tests carried out – they are more than just a pass/fail certificate
• Discounts available for testing large quantities of items.

Range of tests
SATRA can carry out the full range of tests scheduled in the Furniture and Furnishings (Fire) (Safety) Regulations 1988 – these specific mandatory regulations apply to domestic upholstered furniture in the UK.

We can also test to the following:
• BS 7176 – at the various hazard levels specified. This standard applies to non-domestic (contract) upholstered furniture in the UK
• BS 7177 – at the various hazard levels specified. This standard applies to mattresses, both domestic and non-domestic, in the UK
• EN 1021-1 and EN 1021-2 – which are harmonised European standards that apply to upholstered furniture
• IMO (International Maritime Organisation) 2010 FTP Code – this applies to upholstered furniture used at sea.
• EN ISO 12952 and BS 7175 – these apply to bedding items.

Training
SATRA runs regular seminars where you can learn more about the various furniture flammability tests.
